Enterprises IT teams usually focus on the effective use of computing and storage services in their cloud environments, often taking networking aspects for granted. While enterprise network teams are tasked to focus on implementation and operation of their on-premises networks, they tend to have less focus on networking and security aspects in multi-cloud environments. Replicating existing on-premise networking technologies and processes into the cloud may seem straightforward, but often becomes suboptimal, with increase in costs.

Alkira Cloud Service Exchange (CSX) takes the complexity out of multi-cloud networking. It is a global unified network platform for the cloud era delivered as-a-service. Draw your network on a digital design canvas, provision it in one click and have it ready for use in minutes! Your network, just like your cloud, is now available as-a-service. No hardware to buy, no software to download and no cloud to learn.
